

Richard Ernst

Background:

Richard is qualified geologist, business manager, and trainer/assessor. He has 25+ years of operations and general management experience within the construction materials industry, both in Australia and internationally, including working in quarrying, concrete, and asphalt businesses.

Richard's skill set ranges from geological reconnaissance and exploration for quarry materials, practical operational management advice and services, through to business planning, strategy, due diligence, business growth support, and training services.

In 2014, Richard commenced EXTRAXI PTY LTD, a management consultancy offering professional and practical services to the construction materials industry.
